American Humanity and Intrepidity. "Madrid, Feb, 15, 1821. uWe have received a letter from

Alicant, of the 10th inst. which, a mong other matters, mentions the following, worthy of publication:

"You cannot imagine what dreadfustorms we have had here; shipwhorks are daily occurring: nor will you be the less pleased with the exploit of a lieutenant of a vessel of the United States, whose namet is Whipple; it should be engraved up-on the memories of all friends of humanity. On the 8th mosts at half past twelve in the morning; a hor-rible storm arose at seasowhich upset a Swedish boat with two men on board. These unfortunate persons, in spite of all their efforts, could not reach the land. At this moment Lieut. Whipple arrives on the shore; strips off his coat, and with his boots throws himself into the sea. With much difficulty, he succeeds in saving these two men to the admiration of all the spectators. Nor is this all. On the following lay, the storm continuing, the boot of Whipple's vessel, with twelve man, sunk. Notwithstanding and indisposition, caused by the occurrence of the preceding day, he jumped in, and assisted in saving eight of the twelve men. He has been in consequence very ill. You can scarcely conceive the enthusiasm, with which the bystanders admired these actions: he knows that we are not slaves, wno looked with indifference on the misfortunes of our fellow creatures. All sought to relieve the snipwrecked at their houses, and those, who have received them, appear to be well content ed, all the neighbours contributing to the assistance which has been given them. The portrait of Whipple is to be taken; and we are making a subscription to cause a plate to be engraven in Valencia."

Boston, April 24. Capt. Upton, of brig Sam, arrived at this port yesterday from Fort Royal, reports that the privateer ship Voligente, captain Francis Burch, (American) under the Arti gas flag, was captured off St. Barts by a French frigate and carried into Fort Royal. The privateer had dred men, and provisions for a six months cruise for 150 men. On arriving at Fort Royal, the officers and crew were all put into close configement, and it was thought they would be hung, the commissi-on being considered forgery, as the original names had been erased, and others substituted.

From the Winchester Republican. Mr. George Kreps and family, of this town, emigrated last fall to Alabama. In crossing a river, they mistook the ford, and the wagon and horses, with the contents were suddenly immersed in the stream! In the agitation of the moment, Mrs. Kreps parted from her infant child, which was sapidly carried down the current. At that instant a large dog, which had joined the family few days before, pring after the babe, overtook it it as it was sinking, and conveyed it safely to the shore. The horses also regained a footing, and the whole party were
